to help you bury all your existential dread...

ANESTI DANELIS: SIX FRETS UNDER

Fresh off an Amused Moose Comedy Award nomination for his 2018 Fringe show Songs for a New World Order, musical comedian on the rise, Anesti Danelis, returns to the Edinburgh Festival Fringe with Six Frets Under, a delightfully dark musical comedy tackling the happy highs and lousy lows of our everyday lives.

Having been surrounded by loss this past year, Anesti Danelis took refuge in his guitar and created a brand new hour of comedic music. Directed by Tricia Black (The Second City Toronto, She the People) this brand new hour reflects on all the fun moments in life like: identity crisis, invincible youth, inescapable rumours, stealing from work, goats? and more! Now with 100% more piano and violin.

With a style snuggled between Tim Minchin and Flight of the Conchords, Anesti Danelis' unique concert comedy and music experience asks life's biggest questions like 'why are we here?' and 'if people print their missing cat posters in black and white, do they even want to find their cats?' in hopes to help us understand our existence and toe-tap that existential dread away.
