"Growing up - I was too brown for white kids and the wrong kind of brown for brown kids.
That's when I first questioned my identity."

Come and join international stand-up comedian Dharmander Singh as he goes on a journey to discover his identity, roots and nationality through funny stories and observations about being named after a Bollywood legend, living and trying to belong in 80's Birmingham and the challenges and pleasures of being a sun-kissed Brummie in Berlin.

Audience Reviews

"A wonderful show! Very funny and also quite moving. A personal story that takes in religion, politics and identity - with one-liners we were still quoting days later!"

Stuart Parkinson

"Great show. A satirical look at issues we all face today. Highly recommended!"

Lalita Uttamsingh

"Excellent show. Refreshing humour. Look forward to see him again. Five stars."

Peter Dawson

"Enjoyed this show. Friendly, energetic, feel-good comedy!"

About the Comedian

Dharmander Singh was born in Birmingham in the mid 70's as a first generation British Asian. He started in theatre from a young age and graduated to stand up comedy in his late 20's. He successfully ran the Birmingham comedy club "Custard Balti". In 2008, Dharmander did an early "Brexit" and moved to Germany. Based in Berlin, he has been entertaining crowds from Amsterdam to Dubai for over 15 years.

A comedy festival regular, Dharmander performed at Edinburgh Fringe and Birmingham Comedy Festival in 2017 with his acclaimed one-man show "Bollywood and Birmingham to Berlin and Brexit" for the first time. This production has also been part of Edinburgh 2018, Utrecht International Comedy Festival 2019 and Brighton Fringe 2019. It travels in regular intervals through European countries such as Austria, Germany, Poland, the Czech Republic and Italy. Last year Dharmander was invited to perform in Amman, Jordan.

He has appeared on BBC radio on several occasions and featured in the Scottish BAFTA winning film "Crying with Laughter". His style of comedy is light-hearted, captivating, warm, entertaining and energetic with smatterings of social and political commentary.

Dharmander is also the regular compere and co-promoter of the popular club "Cosmic Comedy Berlin" which produces sell-out shows.
