For the first time in her career, Morris steps-out of her much-loved characters and reveals a side we've never seen. Anna welcomes you to share her kid-life crisis as she approaches 40 and contemplates Motherhood.

Anna's having a very female mid-life crisis. Men turn to a leather jacket, a sports car, younger woman and are told they're more attractive as they age. Anna has bagged the younger man, but looks like a tosser in a leather jacket, can't drive, has been offered Botox by her own PR person, can't afford her rent and still suffers from acne.

Friends and strangers unhelpfully keep reminding her that she "hasn't got long!" and "better hurry up!" and procreate. But does she really want children...or is it even possible?

Kid-Life Crisis is an honest, funny and warm show about turning 40, 'otherhood and doing things differently.
